

FIGHT BEGINS FOR A SPEAKER

Le Roy of Marinette, And Ekern Of Arcadia, Both Claim A Majority Of Votes.

CONTEST IS VERY GOOD NATURED

Other Positions Are Being Eagerly Sought For By The Favored Politicians Of The State--Harmony Prevails.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—While the real opening of the legislature comes midday Wednesday, the members have been gathering since last week and the candidates for the various positions in the organization of each house have maintained headquarters and made energetic canvasses among the members. Assemblyman E. W. Le Roy of Marinette, the Davidson-Connor choice for speaker, early took a lead over Assemblyman H. L. Ekern of Arcadia, said to be the out-and-out La Follette candidate. However, the best of personal good feeling has prevailed between the two candidates throughout the canvass. The candidates declared each for himself that if he was elected the other should have whatever committee chairmanship the defeated man chose.

Another merry contest is for chief clerk of the senate, between A. R. Emerson of Darlington and F. E. Andrews of Bloomer. Mr. Emerson had a strong lead from the start. For sergeant-at-arms there has been no op-

BUPNS CORPSE; TOO POOR TO BURY IT

Chicago Court Hears a Pitiful Story of Abject Poverty of a Workman.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 8.—Charles Peterson, a laborer, was arraigned today and fined $25 by Municipal Judge Himes for having cremated the corpse of his position to ex-Senator R. C. Falconer, who held the place last session to entire satisfaction.

Five young politicians are racing for the election as chief clerk of the lower house—Roy C. Smelker of Dodgeville, J. S. Bletcher of Milwaukee, both members of the house two years ago; C. E. Shaffer of Madison, for four sessions an assistant chief clerk; Henry Overbeck of Green Bay, former assemblyman and state fish and game warden, and L. B. Nagler of Hudson, a former chief clerk's assistant. Until the eve of the republican caucus it has been impossible to pick the winner, although Overbeck seemed strong on account of his alliance with LeRoy and the Davidson-Connor people. A free-for-all race has been had for sergeant-at-arms of the assembly.

The two houses will meet and organize Wednesday noon, and the message of Governor Davidson will be read Thursday. Then an adjournment will be taken over Sunday for the speaker to make up his committees and next week the work of legislation will begin in earnest.

TEXAS LEGISLATURE WILL RE-ELECT SENATOR BAILEY

Indications For His Success At Opening Of Present Session--Alabama And Kansas Solons.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Austin, Texas, Jan. 8.—The state legislature which is to name a successor to Joseph W. Bailey in the United States senate assembled today. The indications are that Bailey will be re-elected, though, even in the opinion of his friends, he has most narrowly escaped political annihilation as a result of the exposure of his dealings with the Standard Oil interests. It is the consensus of opinion that if the exposure had come before the state primary was held it would have meant Bailey's defeat. But as it is there has been a noticeable weakening in the antagonism of many opponents who at first seemed dead set against him. This in no small way is due to the determination of party leaders to prevent a serious break in the rank and file. Moreover, the opposition has been unable to agree upon a possible successor to Mr. Bailey, in case of his defeat. All of these conditions have combined to favor Bailey's chances of re-election.

Aside from the choice of a senator the present session of the legislature will have enough business to keep its hands full until time for adjournment. Revenue and taxation are the two most important matters to come up for consideration. A readjustment in taxation is deemed absolutely necessary in order to overcome the deficiency in the state treasury. Measures dealing with the liquor traffic will occupy considerable prominence and it is possible another attempt may be made to greatly increase the saloon license. Election laws also will receive attention at the session.

Kansas Legislature Meets. Topeka, Kan., Jan. 8.—The Kansas legislature met today, six days in advance of the inauguration of state officers. Interest in the opening days of the session will center almost wholly in the election of a United States senator to succeed A. W. Benson, who was appointed by Governor Hoch to fill out the term of Joseph R. Burton.

More than half a dozen names are mentioned in connection with the senatorship and a lively contest is assured even after the majority of them have been eliminated from the race. Congressman Charles Curtis of the First district appears confident of success, though he needs quite a few more votes to control the caucus. Others who are more or less actively engaged in the contest are Congressman Victor Murdock of the Eighth district, Congressman Philip P. Campbell of the Third district, J. L. Bristow, formerly fourth assistant postmaster general; James F. Getty of Kansas City, former Governor W. J. Bailey, Congressman W. A. Calderhead of the Fifth district, and A. W. Benson of Attawa, the present senator by appointment.

After the senator has been elected there will be legislation to be enacted regulating insurance companies, railroads, the liquor traffic and elections. Leading members of both branches already have preparation measures covering these and other subjects.

Alabama Lawmakers. Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 8.—The quadrennial session of the Alabama legislature got into working order today and from now until the adjournment of the session fifty days hence it will be kept busy with the legislative grind. As the senatorship is a perfunctory matter the legislature will have the entire time to devote to the consideration of the various measures brought before it. Numerous bills, of both a local and general character, are to be introduced. The legislators will take part in the inauguration of Governor Comer and other new state officials next Monday.

FOR FOURTH TIME STORK IS EXPECTED AT QUIRINAL

No Celebration at Italian Royal Palace On Thirty-Fifth Anniversary Of Queen Helena's Birth.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Rome, Jan. 8.—Queen Helena entered upon her thirty-fifth year today, but owing to an interesting event expected to take place shortly the birthday anniversary was allowed to pass almost unobserved at the Quirinal. The impending visit of the stork is looked forward to with joy in the royal household, as well as throughout Italy, for it is the cherished wish of the young King and Queen to rear a large family.

The royal couple already have three children, the Princess Yolanda Margherita Milena, born on June 1, 1901; Princess Mafalda Maria Elizabetha, born November 19, 1902, and the heir to the throne, little Prince Umberto Nicola Tommaso Giovanni Maria, Prince of Piedmont, who was born September 15, 1904.

Queen Helena has always been more than content to devote herself to the care of her children, holding herself aloof from affairs of state and rearing them with the care and attention that a woman of the plebeian ranks would bestow on her offspring. Essentially a womanly woman, the Queen is perhaps the most attractive royal personage of the day.

Queen Helena's love of children is a popular tradition throughout the kingdom. The number of fat little "Bambinos" who have felt the caress of her royal lips is beyond computation, and at the charity bazaars which she visits it is always the baby clothes booth that secures her earliest attention and patronage. She cannot be reproached with bourgeois tastes, however, for when the occasion arises she presents a bearing out to be excelled in the most fastidious courts, and it has been said that she surpasses in majesty of carriage any other sovereign in Europe.

HAVE NO TITLE TO THE $5 FEE

JUNIOR ALDERMEN MUST PART WITH COMPENSATION.

MAXFIELD GIVES OPINION

Which Severely Disappoints the City
Fathers Who Asked for It—May Go to the Courts.

Prior to the last spring election the city council passed a measure providing that aldermen should receive five dollars for each regular meeting they should attend and fixing a salary of $300 per annum for the mayor. It was recognized at that time that the then incumbents of office could not take advantage of the new arrangement until they should have gone before the people again for re-election.
But recently a question arose as to whether or not the five dollars per meeting for aldermen was a salary, or a wage or compensation. No officer may increase his own salary while in office but it seemed possible that all might be entitled to a wage or compensation so fixed. City Attorney Maxfield was called upon for an opinion and according to his findings, as presented to the council last night, it was within the power of the aldermen to fix a salary, but they exceeded their authority in providing for a compensation or wage. Hence all the five-dollar fees paid thus far to the five junior aldermen, were illegally paid, and they are entitled to no future compensation of the kind.
The aldermen in their chagrin may take the matter into the courts for a test.

Powers of the Council
The opinion is based on the powers of the common council, derived under section 925-30 R. S. 1898 of Wisconsin, with reference to the fixing of a salary or compensation for the mayor and aldermen, with particular reference to the following questions:
Was a salary or compensation fixed by the ordinance passed? If either a compensation or a salary was fixed,
did it apply to the mayor and aldermen from the date the ordinance went into effect? What is the difference between "salary" and "compensation"
as interpreted by the legislature?

of each month. All salaries heretofore fixed by any council or established by law, shall be and remain the salaries of such officers until the council shall otherwise determine; provided, however, that where any new city shall have been incorporated and officers thereof elected or appointed,
the council may at any regular meeting, during the term of office of such officer, declare and fix the amount of compensation they shall receive."

Action Taken Here

"The common council of the city of Janesville, by three-fourths vote of all its members, passed an ordinance at the first regular meeting in February, being Feb. 6th, 1906, adopting said section 925-30, authorizing the common council to fix the amount of salary or compensation to be received by every officer and employee entitled to the same.

"The legislature in section 23 of chapter 326 of the laws of 1889 defines officers of cities of the second and third classes (of which Janesville is one) to be mayor, aldermen, etc.

"This section of the general charter law has never been adopted by the city of Janesville, but it shows that the legislature considered the mayor and aldermen as officers.

"In the case of Gilbert Arnold Land
Co. vs. City of Superior, et al., 61
Wis. 253, J. Marshall used the words
'Salary as applying to officers of the city' (which were mayor and aldermen).

"The legislature in drafting said
section used words 'salary or compensation' as applying to 'officers and employees' in the first few lines of said section. That the common council shall by ordinance provide such salary or compensation for the officers and employees of the city as it shall deem proper; again, in the next few lines of said section, the legislature placed a restriction upon the members of the council in voting a salary to the mayor and members of the council, who are officers of the city, and limiting the salary when thus fixed to the ones that may be elected or appointed during the ensuing year, but placing no restriction upon the council in fixing the compensation for the employees of the city at any time by a mere majority vote, clearly showing that the legislature intended 'salary' should be fixed for the officers, and 'compensation' for the employees of said city.

Compensation Measure Void

"Where there is a provision in the city charter prescribing the payment of a salary to its officers, an ordinance passed providing for a compensation is void (Bradley vs. Sternberg, 49 Pac. 499.)

"Where a mode has been provided for paying officers, it must be followed. (Cowdin vs. Huff, 10 Ind. 83.)

"In section 925-30 the legislature authorizes the payment of a salary to the mayor and members of the council, and not a compensation, to which only the employees of said city are entitled.

"Salary is a fixed, annual or periodical payment depending on time and not amount of services rendered.
"Pursuant to the adoption of section 925-30, the common council passed said ordinance, entitled 'An ordinance to fix the salaries of the officers of the city of Janesville.'

"Section 1. The salaries of the officers of the city of Janesville are hereby fixed at the following amounts:
payable monthly—mayor, $200.00 per annum.

"Which in my opinion is a salary properly fixed, and the mayor who is elected or appointed after the adoption of said ordinance is entitled to draw the same and not otherwise.

"For aldermen the said section provides 'Each alderman in actual attendance shall receive five dollars for each regular meeting of the common council.'

"The salary or compensation of any public officer of the city, is governed entirely by the charter or statute, and is under the control of the legislature, who in the absence of constitutional restriction may increase, diminish or entirely take away, at any time, at the will of the legislature, the salary or compensation of such officer. (Elliott's Elements of Municipal Corp. Sec.
207.) (State ex rel. Martin vs. Dalb Treas. 50 Wis. 178.)

"Where a statute allows an officer salary compensation, it admits of two interpretations, it shall be construed strongly against the officer.
(Elliott's Elements of Municipal Corp.
Sec. 267.) (U. S. vs. Clough, 65 Fed.
Rep. 273.) Which doctrine has been adopted by the supreme court of Wisconsin.

"Section 925-30 R. S. gives the common council the power to fix a salary for its officers, the mayor and aldermen. By said ordinance, the council gave a salary to the mayor, but failed to fix a salary for the aldermen, but provided a compensation, which is different from salary.

"In my opinion said ordinance, which provides a compensation for the aldermen, is void, as the council had no power to fix any other or different mode of payment than provided by said section, which is a salary;
and no member of the present common council is entitled to receive any money as compensation as provided for, by said ordinance.

DOOR OPENED TO R. & I. FREIGHT

CITY DADS PASSED AMENDMENT TO FRANCHISE.

NEW FOURTH AVENUE BRIDGE

Plans Are to be Made at Once—Three Streets Vacated—Several Interesting Reports Received.

By virtue of the third reading and passage last evening of an amended ordinance introduced two years ago,
the Rockford & Interurban Co. is now privileged to carry package freight, express, and U. S. Mail through the streets of Janesville in compartments of its passenger cars or in special freight cars, made to resemble as nearly as possible the passenger cars.
Freight compartments shall not occupy more than one half of the space of passenger cars and not more than two regular freight cars will be permitted to be coupled together and run as a train. These cars are never to be stored on the local tracks. The measure was passed without opposition.

Plans for New Bridge.

Alderman Merritt introduced an order and the same was passed, instructing the city engineer to prepare plans for a new street bridge over Rock river at Fourth avenue, and to negotiate for a right of way at the westerly end.
The sponsor of the measure said that the present structure was in a rickety condition and that if it should go out at any time the city should be ready to build at once without spending a year or more in going through the preliminaries.

Streets Vacated.

Alderman Fish to whom was referred the petition of Edna E. Dick calling upon the city to vacate Helen,
May, and Harriet streets in D. P.
Smith's Park View addition to Janesville in the first ward, introduced an order providing for the action requested and the same was passed. Mayor Hutchinson called attention to the deplorable condition, particularly during rainy weather, of the sidewalk on West Milwaukee street in front of the stores owned by George G. Sutherland and the Tallman estate and requested the highway committee to take some action leading to a prompt remedy as soon as possible.

Washington Street Repairs.

Resolutions and orders providing for the issue of six per cent bonds to the amount of $705.43 for the portion of the cost of the improvement of Washington street from the northerly side of West Bluff street to the southerly side of Ravine, which owners of abutting real-estate had not elected to pay; authorizing the mayor and city treasurer to negotiate and sell these bonds to the highest bidder;
and instructing the city clerk to sign and deliver to P. W. Ryan the certificates issued for said improvement which owners of property had filed in lieu of election to pay; were introduced by Chairman Sheridan of the highway committee along with the report of the statement and schedules of the several assessments, and all were adopted.

946 Arrests in 1906.

The finance committee, chairman
Edward Connell, submitted a report on bills totaling $409.98—the smallest in many months—and the same was adopted. Mayor Hutchinson's appointment of E. J. Smith as a member of the fire and police patrol was confirmed. City Marshal Appleby's report for the year showed that there were 946 arrests, an average of 135 for each officer. His report for December recorded 69 arrests, of which 4 were for petit larceny, 2 for larceny from the person, 1 for grand larceny, 2 for violation of city ordinances, 1 for drunkenness and 55 for drunkenness 33 were taken to court and 36 discharged. Lodging was given to 69 men. Stolen property recovered and returned to owners amounted to $109
in value. Arrests were made as follows: Appleby, 8; Brown, 8; Beneke, 6; Bear, 6; Champion, 7; Morrissey, 11; Mason, 10; Fanning, 7. The board of education report submitted by Ald.
Rudolph showed expenditures aggregating $4,919.35 in December. Fees amounting to $29.58 fines aggregating $34.70, and city marshal's fees totaling $7.60 were collected by the municipal court during the month of December.

To Buy A New Team.

Health Commissioner W. D. Merritt reported that during the period from Oct. 15 to Jan. 7 there had been 16 cases of diphtheria and 2 of scarlet fever (none fatal) in the city;
that all had been duly quarantined;
that there were three cases of contagious disease at the present time—one of scarlet fever at the home of Mrs. Dickens, corner of Center and Cherry streets, and one of diphtheria
at the home of Sanford Sovorhill, and one case of scarlet fever at the isolation hospital, the patient being a student from the school for the blind.
He recommended that a stove burning hard coal be installed at the hospital, that the contract with the keeper which expires in February be renewed for five years, and that the city purchase a suitable garbage wagon. The purchase of a suitable stove was authorized by motion and the health officer and city attorney were instructed to renew the contract for one year. By another order the chief engineer was instructed to sell the gray team used on the heavy fire truck and $150 was appropriated from the fire and water fund for the purchase of a new one. In all likelihood the city will bid in this team for use on the streets. The finance committee was granted further time for the consideration of City Attorney Maxfield's opinion on salaries. Aldermen Hager and Brockhaus were absent from the session.

Lapin's Hall.—Opening Exhibition of the Great Miltonian Tabernacle.—Last evening the first exhibition of these truly beautiful tableaux took place before one of the largest and most intelligent audiences ever assembled in this city, and all seemed delighted with the gorgeous representations of Paradise, Pantomime, Chaos, Earth, etc. The views consist of sixty-four tableaux scenes, most of which are exquisitely beautiful. There has probably never been in this city an exhibition calculated to leave upon the mind a deeper impression of sublimity than these, illustrating as they do Milton's immortal poem of "Paradise Lost." The scenes throughout might well compare with a Dabney or a Martin, but of two we would especially make mention as surpassing all others, viz., the rising of the sun upon the young earth for the first time, and the rising of a woman by a cloud and then bursting out in all its glorious effulgence, while the sound of distant music during the scene renders it very effective and holds the audience in breathless admiration. The other scene to which we allude is where Satan reaches the convex line that bounds the universe and descends into golden steps that lead to the gates of heaven, angels ascending and descending, while again the sound of music, as it from the heavenly city, adds greatly to the beauty of the scene.

Before The Footlights.

The new Carnegie or Roosevelt plan of "Simplified Spelling" has been instantly adopted on the spur of the moment, by the press agent of the Shubert production, "Veronique, the Flower Girl," with the following happy results:

"Thoroly to enjoy yourself come to the Myers Theatre Wednesday, Jan. 9, where the program of 'Veronique' will please you throuthout. No sonther fantom of old style musical comedy will affront you as a fantasim of more jungle, rag time and buffoonery, but in this Milwaukee Street demic of Thespis you will be blest with a true gem of melody and mirth. No dullness, but humor and turefulness beap up." A full catalog of all 'Veroniques' charms would take too much room to be here exprest, altho we can furnish a clue to the evening's entertainment. The plot concerns a coquet who is kist, a gallant lover who wears sword if not cutlas or similar, a bride whose bans has been fixt, but who masquerades to spy on the gallant's flirtations. Thru her disguise as flower girl, Cupid's tricks are crosd, the mask dropt, and Veronique clint, careest, cosset, blusht and kist. The gallant escapes jail for detrs by this maneuver of his sweetheart, his good-by bachelor picnic party is post with rollicking humor and no luster of court splendor is mist, since the third act is throuot enacted in the 'Tulleries.' Thirty-nine words in the simplified spelling list appear herein as the government printer would now have to set them in type while the 'Veronique' press agent is himself responsible for the shortened spelling 'debut' as 'deets'.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several sciences of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, liver complaint, torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their results, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hark of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Hiley of the Univ. of Mich.; Dr. Nett Med College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D. of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D. of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through the country for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement, and more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glycerine extract of native medicinal roots and is safe and reliable. A booklet of extracts from eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients, is placed free on request. Address Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 8.—Deputy Sheriff Olson was called to the vicinity of Erhard, 12 miles north of here Sunday night to investigate the shooting of Mollie Thorson. She tells an extraordinary story. Shortly after her father left for town, a man covered with a white sheet and wearing a mask walked into the house and taking a small rifle from under the folds of the sheet, began shooting at her. Four shots were fired, one bullet passing through her arm near her shoulder and another cutting her dress slightly. The other two shots went wide of the mark. The man then turned and left.

THE COMMON COUNCIL

The members of the common council are to be congratulated on their action last evening, on the package freight proposition for the interurban road. This has long been needed, and while it will be a benefit to the road, it will benefit the city to much larger extent.

Anything that encourages people to trade in Janesville is entitled to hearty support. When the volume of trade is increased it means more work and more money, and these contribute to the city's growth.

The outlook for the Madison line is good, and when this is completed the convenience of package freight privileges will be more fully appreciated.

It is to be regretted that the question of compensation for the aldermen could not have been left undisturbed. If there is any thankless task in the city, where a man gets damned both going and coming, it falls to the lot of the city fathers.

Go out and ask the first dozen business men you meet to run for alderman next spring, and the universal reply will be, "Not on your life." The result is that almost any man who will consent to serve the city, is accused of being an office-seeker or a grafter.

The present council has never been accused of dishonesty. The new members were receiving the magnificent salary of five dollars a meeting, ten dollars a month. If the law had remained in force long enough to include them all, and every member had been present at every meeting for a year, the salary list including the mayor would have been $1400.

That may seem extravagant to some people, but if there is any reason why a dozen men should spend their time in serving the city without remuneration, it remains to be stated.

The ideal councilman is supposed to possess a large degree of patriotism and loyalty to his city, and his reward is said to be found in the satisfaction which comes when the verdict is pronounced, "Well done."

The ideal citizen is supposed to be ready at any time to serve his fellows whenever the demand is made, and the fact that he has been selected is in itself a great honor.

But the ideal and the real are different propositions. It is safe to say however that it exists in the council, to greater extent than in the ranks of citizens.

There is very little sentiment about government, and the men who are willing to devote time and energy to public service, are entitled to some compensation, and should receive it.

SOME OF THE RESULTS

E. O'Riely, president of the Santa Fe railroad, complains of the lack of loyalty of employees. It is not at all surprising that this is the case, for railroads today are under the ban, and the football for all kinds of kickers.

The man who works for one of these corporations, lives in an atmosphere of complaint and criticism, and it is not difficult for him to believe that his employer belongs to the most disreputable class now inhabiting the footstool.

This is one of the natural consequences of fanatical reform, and there are others equally pernicious.

The Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago and North-Western, and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern are held up and censured for increasing their capital stock, when it is apparent to a blind man that every dollar of this increase is to be invested in extensions and betterments.

E. H. Harriman is playing a close second to John D. Rockefeller, as the arch friend of the new century, because he is making money and investing it in one of the great railway systems of the country.

And so all along the line suspicion is aroused and prejudice created against the greatest agency the country possesses, for development and progress.

It would serve the nation right if half a dozen of these leading spirits should retire from the financial world for a twelvemonth, and let nature take its course. There wouldn't be any railroad building, and the shortage of freight cars would certainly not improve.

Harriman has done for the western roads, in the last decade, what Hill accomplished in the same time for the northern roads. Both systems were in bankrupt condition, and were only saved by the energy and wonderful ability of these two men. Yet their names today are a by-word from Washington to the Pacific coast, and reformers of whatever stripe are so jubilant that they can't see straight. People were always afraid of the cars, but never so much so as they are today.

The Gazette has long been accused of being a railroad organ, bought up by passes and mileage, and not daring to whisper a word against this class of corporations.

To allay suspicion the fact should be known that the railroads are now in the hands of an all-wise interstate commerce commission and the newspaperman who travels this year pays for the privilege in the coin of the realm.

The papers can no longer be accused of being subsidized, and when they speak out in meeting in defense of justice and the square deal, action is not influenced by a railroad pass. During the free silver agitation a few years ago multitudes of people flocked to the support of Bryan, honestly believing that cheap money meant more money for everybody.

The same sort of a stampede is going on today on the railroad question. This class of corporations have never been popular with the masses. They are targets for all sorts of damage suits and almost any kind of a conscience is flexible enough to beat a railroad whenever opportunity presents.

Reform agitation and all kinds of reform legislation has intensified antagonism, until today the railroad is regarded by many people as an enemy. It is simply a case of reform run mad, and the press of the country can engage in no better work than attempting to show the foolishness and injustice of this crazy sentiment.

Harriman and Hill may be men of "swollen fortunes." They are certainly entitled to that sort of a swelling, but it is well to remember that while they have been cultivating it, that the country at large has not been standing still.

It takes more than money to build a railroad that stretches across the continent in advance of civilization. Back of the money must be the men with sublime faith in the future, inspired by energy and ambition, such as few men possess.

Harriman and Hill represent a handful of this class of men, and the nation has occasion to be thankful that their energies are being expended on American soil.

This land is blessed today by corporate energy, and is not cursed by corporate greed, reformers to the contrary notwithstanding. The country needs wholesome laws, but it has no use for monstrosities, such as were recently passed in Arkansas. What is needed more than anything else is the cultivation of hard common sense.

JUDGE GRIMM

Judge George Grimm, who was elected to the circuit court judgeship on Tuesday, April 24, and began his term of office today, was born in Jefferson county, September 11, 1850. He received a collegiate education at the Jefferson Liberal Institute and Northwestern college at Watertown, afterwards graduating from the college of law at the University of Michigan. He was elected to the legislature in 1887 in the Second Assembly district of his county in 1886 by 600 majority although he was a republican and his district a democratic one. He practiced law for several years and was elected several terms to the office of county judge, practically without opposition.

CHURCH TO SUPPORT MISSIONARY ABROAD

Local Presbyterian Church Has Raised Six Hundred Dollars—Cottage Prayer Meetings.

Through the efforts of Rev. J. W. Laughlin and prominent members of the Presbyterian church six hundred dollars was raised by collection at the regular services Sunday for the purpose of supporting a worker in the foreign mission field. A missionary's average expenses are fifty dollars a month and the amount subscribed by the local society is enough for a year. Another collection will be taken early in 1908 and the church members hope to support the discipline permanently. The appointment has not yet been made, but will probably be to China, the field in which the Presbyterian church is most active.

The Land of Proverbial Milk and Honey.

We are now in a position to offer you irrigated or non-irrigated land in sunny Alberta, Canada, direct from the Canadian Pacific R. R. Co.

We say, and prove it by government records that Alberta is by long odds from the standpoint of climate the cream of grain growing provinces. It is verily the Colorado of Canada. Mean temperature at Calgary. Summer, 58.8; Winter, 13.8; Year 37.4. Above zero.

It is not to the speculator, who wants to buy a large tract of land and quietly waits for the settler to improve all the adjacent land and thus double the value of his land, but to the man who is a tiller of the soil and can sell the land that cost him $10 to $20 per acre for $75 to $100 per acre, also to all renters who are paying rent enough every year to make good payment on a farm of their own and in a country where cattle and horses graze the whole year. A word to the man in the city who feels the land hunger and longs to get away from the treadmill of the city or serfdom of the factory; to the young man with a brave heart and brawny muscle, starting out in life to make home and fortune; to every man who wants an opportunity for ease, profitable farming, and at the same time to profit by the inevitable rapid rise in land values; to the man who seeks a home in a delightful climate and a sure fortune that will reward his honest, industrious efforts; to the man who wants to better himself and family; to the man of modest means who longs for a comfortable fortune; to the man who knows by experience or belief that irrigation is the sure way of farming; to the man who is capable of seeing the opportunity of a lifetime and has the courage to grasp that opportunity we appeal. We have something for such men.

JUDGE GRIMM ON
CIRCUIT BENCH

MADE A NOTABLE ADDRESS AT
OPENING OF COURT.

AT 10 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

Thanked Local Bar for Warm Welcome Extended and Outlined His Policy in Trial of Cases.

"Gentlemen of the Bar: As we start out upon the prospective six years during which you are to be the partisan champions of litigants and I am to be the umpire, we ought, perhaps, to pause for a few words that may lead to a clearer understanding. You know the umpire's part is delicate and difficult. The defeated side is always dissatisfied and finds it difficult to believe that the decision has been unbiased, and this in the nature of the case. For the true litigant is an intense partisan. Where you find a lawyer who has made a conspicuous success in his calling you find that he has the easy habit of conviction that his client is always right. And so, in the face of defeat, it is always difficult to believe that the judge, whom the loser may consider no better lawyer than himself, is right. Some feeling of resentment against supposed injustice is bound to arise and if the case is carried up to a higher court and it turns out that the judge is wrong, this feeling is intensified.

"Yet it is a happy thing that the good lawyer cannot long harbor such feelings against a judge whom he knows to be honest.

"I come to you not entirely a stranger. At home I am credited with honesty of purpose and I have heard of your splendid, fearless men of the Rock county bar.

"We shall clash—you in the battle and I in my efforts to restrain you from striking below the belt. But I promise you this—that neither personal friendships nor feelings shall affect my judgment.

"I promise you that as the years roll by, you will secretly be convinced of my determination to do the upright thing.

"In the trial of cases I bespeak the same courtesy I extend to you. I shall not permit you to hurry me with your impetuosity, nor will I deny you a fair hearing. We are all officers striving to have order and justice maintained.

"In this connection I have one suggestion—I don't know that it is necessary but I offer it—wordy wrangling between contending attorneys, while it may amuse the audience, adds nothing to the strength of a case, but on the contrary interferes with that calm administration of justice which is so necessary. It is not always altogether blameworthy, but how much more inspiring is the struggle between real legal athletes, pitted one against the other, watching for every advantage, but with only the gentlest and truest courtesy shown. When it is finished the vanquished has at least won the high regard of the victor.

"There is an old German proverb, which translated reads: 'A good word always finds a good place.' In no place is this so true as in the law. It will find a good place with jury and clients.

"As to our terms of court I am not prepared to speak. After our calendar is disposed of I propose to be here every week as many days as necessary, and I shall try to be here at certain regular times, except, perhaps, when called out of the circuit. Beginning next week I will be here every Monday during the month of January.

"The new rules of the circuit court you and I will abide by. They are made for the purpose of expediting business. The jurors have a right to expect it; therefore, when we call the calendar, so far as possible, the jury cases must be ready for trial. I, of course, do not ask this for my convenience, as my entire time belongs to the circuit, in any event.

"I shall always be ready to receive suggestions and hope you will speak frankly. Often I shall profit by them. There were a number of applicants for appointment as court commissioners and in this county the old applicants all had full lists of signatures as well as the new one, so I have issued a formal order re-appointing all the old ones throughout the circuit. (The Rock county commissioners are Judge J. W. Sale, M. P. Richardson, O. A. Oestreich, and Edward F. Carpenter of Janesville; T. D. Woolsey of Beloit, J. P. Towne of Edgerton, and F. L. James of Evansville.)

"I also announce that I have appointed Mr. Francis Grant as court reporter.

"In conclusion I want to thank you for the kindness with which you have received me. During the little fight a year ago you treated me with generosity which I could not fail to appreciate, and you have shown it ever since. Though your wishes were not fulfilled I am certain that you stand ready to meet me halfway."

Approved by Standing

Nearly all of the attorneys of Rock county were gathered at the court-room this morning and an informal reception for Judge Grimm of Jefferson was held immediately preceding the opening of the adjourned November term of circuit court. At 10:05 Sheriff I. U. Fisher pronounced the "Hear Ye! Hear Ye!" call and immediately thereafter Judge Grimm took his place on the bench and delivered the notable words of greeting which have just been recorded. His address made a most favorable impression and at the close, following the suggestion of E. D. McGowan, the entire bar rose to signify its approval of what had been said. Clerk of Court Jesse Earle then read the roll of jurors and the calling of the calendar followed.

Cases Set for Next Week
The issues of fact for the court: John T. Billings vs. Wilson Lane and the Co., et al. vs. P. Ry. Co. vs. the city of Janesville were set for next Monday. Hugh Stockman vs. G. D. Wixom for next Thursday. Willis N. Tanberg vs. Stanley D. Tallman et al for next Friday and the action of Frank Klasczka vs. the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. the only jury action in immediate prospect for Jan. 15. After a jury consisting of E. L. Beebe, Seville Chamber, G. H. Gesley, G. P. Beagle, John Dustin, Everett Van Patten, John R. Clark, W. H. Taylor, O. L. Shepherd, Henry Rogers, Albert Palmer, and S. S. Strand, had been empaneled, the case was continued until Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock.

$15,000 Damage Action
Frank Klasczka was formerly an employe of the defendant, working for it eight months or more, as a section man, principally in the yards at Janesville. Two or three days prior to November 22, 1905, he was employed at Beloit, being transported back and forth by the trains of the defendant. On the evening of November 22, 1905, as the train upon which he was riding approached the city of Janesville, being in the vicinity of the roundhouse, he went out upon the platform of the coach in which he was riding, and claims he was thrown off by a sudden movement of the car; that the fall threw him under the wheels of the coach, and that his left leg was injured in such a way that it had to be amputated below the knee. He claims that the injury was caused by the negligence of the defendant, and prays for $15,000 damages. Ryan & Oestreich and Fetters, Jeffris & Mount appear as attorneys for the plaintiff, and Thos. S. Nolan and Chas. E. Vroman of Chicago are the attorneys for the defendant.

WHILE OWNER SLEPT

Property of Agent for Chicago Industrial Home for Children Taken from Depot.

While Theodore A. Doughty of Evansville was taking a little nap in the North-Western passenger depot this morning, his overcoat, a valuable blue broadcloth garment, disappeared and the police as yet have been unable to find any trace of the missing article. Mr. Doughty, who is a solicitor for the Chicago Industrial Home for Children, came here on an early morning train to make connections with a noon train. He left the coat and grip in the waiting room while he went out for breakfast and the property was still safe of his return. He sat down on the opposite side of the room to read a paper and fell into a doze. On awakening the coat had vanished. As no local "characters" were seen about the depot this morning and several trains passed through during the time Mr. Doughty slept it is supposed the new possessor of the coat is far from here now.

Bradley somehow didn't enjoy the rest of the conversation. In the first place, he didn't relish the idea, so sad-denly brought home to him, that "fellows" were running after Gus, and particularly he didn't care to have Sam Hammond among the runners. He had met Sam once or twice in New York. A big chap he was, handsome and well dressed in a rather loud fashion and with a boastful knowledge of life about town. Bradley was not a prig, but sailors and after theater supper, had little attraction for him, even if his salary had been large enough to pay the bills. He had wondered idly how Sam could afford the "fun" he was always describing.

The melodeon in the vestry struck up "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the loungers on the terrace began to move over toward the door. He went with them, standing a little way back from the entrance. The final verse of the hymn died away in dead Mrs. Piper's tremulous falsetto. Then there was a hush as the benediction was pronounced, the door swung open, and, with giggles and a rustle of conversation, the worshippers began to emerge.

Bradley looked for Gus, and at last he saw her. She was talking to Mr. Langworthy, and the light from the bracket lamp in the entry shone upon her face. Again he decided, just as he had when he left her before going to sea, that she was pretty, but now he realized that hers was not a doll-like prettiness, but that there was character in her dark eyes and the expression of her mouth.

She came out and stood on the step, buttoning her glove. Two of the young fellows stepped out of the line toward her. She spoke to both of them and laughed. Then she caught sight of Bradley, who also had moved into the lamplight, and, brushing past the rival pair of volunteer escorts, she held out her hand.

"Why, Brad," she exclaimed, "where on earth did you come from? I'm ever so glad to see you. How do you do?" Bradley shook hands and said, "How do you do?" There was no earthly reason why he should be embarrassed, but he was, just a little. He stammered and then asked if he might have the pleasure of "seeing her home."

"Why, of course you may," she said. "That's what you came here for, isn't it? I hope so, at any rate."

Bradley laughed and admitted that he guessed that was about it. Gus took his arm, and they moved down the path and down the rough stone steps to the sidewalk.

"Why, I haven't seen you for an age," said Gus. "And you haven't written for nearly three weeks! Why did you come home now? You didn't expect to come home so soon, did you?"

Bradley explained why he had come home. Captain Titcomb had left the Thomas Doane, he said, and he had left with him. He didn't tell the real reason for the leaving, but hinted at dissatisfaction with the owners. To head off further questions on this ticklish subject he asked Gus what she had been doing that winter.

"Well," she said, "I graduated from high school, for one thing, and I'm keeping house for grandma. I guess that's about all."

"What's been going on in town? Any dances?"

"Yes; a few. I went to the Washington's birthday ball, but it wasn't much fun. Most of the floor committee were old, married people and about every other dance was 'Hull's Victory' or a quadrille. Round dances, you know, are wicked, especially if you don't know how to dance them."

"You wrote me you went to that. Sam Hammond's been home, hasn't he?"

"Oh, yes. I went to the ball with him. He's a lovely dancer, and we waltzed whenever they played a waltz tune, no matter whether the rest were busy with a quadrille or not. But why don't you tell me what you are going to do now that you've given up your position?"

Bradley told her of Captain Titcomb's idea concerning the purchase of the Lizzie and the offer of partnership in the wrecking business. As he talked his growing interest in the plan became more evident, and he spoke of it as something already nearly decided upon. "What do you think of it?" he asked in conclusion.

"I don't know," replied Gus. "If it all works out as the can't hope" it will be a fine thing. But isn't it rather risky? It means staying at home here in Orlam, where people's ideas get into a rut, it seems to me. The cities seem so big and to have such chances for a man! You know yourself, Brad, that you've improved a lot since you went away."

"I haven't got a gold watch yet or any fine clothes, and my dancing wouldn't draw a crowd, I guess."

"Don't be silly. Sam is a good waltzer, and he has improved in his manners and in other ways. I shouldn't want you to settle down into nothing but a longshoreman. I guess I'm like Miss Tempy. I hoped you'd be captain of an ocean liner some of these days."

"Well, I don't mean to cramp myself to longshoreman size just because I stay in the village. It looks to me like a chance—a good chance—to be my own boss and make something of myself. I hoped you'd see it that way."

"Perhaps I shall when I get more used to it. Tell me more, please."

They had reached the little house, and, leaning on the gate under the big silver leaf tree, Bradley again went over the details of the new plan. Gus was interested and asked many questions, but to both of them the interview was not entirely satisfactory. The old, boy and girl, whole hearted exchange of confidences seemed to be lacking. To Bradley in particular as he turned away after saying, "Good night," the consciousness of a difference in his relation with his old time "chum" was keen. She was interested in him and in his hopes and plans, but she had plans and hopes of her own, and perhaps he was not so much the central figure as he used to be.

Next day Bradley called on the captain. The latter had seen Caleb Burgess, and the Lizzie could be bought for a very reasonable sum. Captain Titcomb was also preparing a long table of figures showing the cost of what was needed to fit her up. They talked for over an hour, but Bradley was not yet ready to decide. He would take his full week, he said.

But by the end of the week his mind was made up. He was ready to take the chance that the captain offered. He told Gus so, and she agreed that perhaps he was doing right. He told the old maids and so knocked Miss Tempy's air castles into smithereens in one tremendous crash.

The partnership articles were signed. Bradley drew his money from the savings bank, and the Lizzie changed hands. The next month was a very busy one, for they were at work on the schooner every day refitting, and rigging. One noon of the fourth week the captain came down to the wharf with a Boston paper in his hand.

Bradley took the paper and saw on the page indicated the words: "Wreck on the Long Island Sound Bars. The Schooner Thomas Doane Lost. All Hands Saved." He glanced over the article, which briefly stated that the three masted schooner Thomas Doane, Burke master, had struck on the shoals off Long Island and would be a total loss. The crew, after trying in vain to save the vessel, had taken to the boats and reached shore in safety.

"I didn't believe they'd dare do it!" exclaimed Bradley. "We know, and they know we know."

"Who'll tell me," asked the captain shortly. "Not me, for I was in it as bad as the rest. Not for you, for you know you and me were thicker'n flies on a molasses stopper. No; 'twas 'Goodby, Susan Jane,' so far as the old Doane was concerned, and I've been expectin' it. Well, I wasn't at the funeral, so let's forget it!"

And apparently Captain Titcomb did forget it. A good many months were to pass before Bradley was again to hear his friend mention that subject.

CHAPTER IX.

IT was a May morning off Sackett Point. The Point itself was in the middle distance, with the lighthouse top, shining black against the sky and the little cluster of fishing shanties showing brown amid the white sand dunes and green beach grass. The life saving station was perched on the highest of the dunes, and its cupola was almost as conspicuous as the lighthouse. The thick cloud, apparently of mosquitoes, hovering over the point was in reality the flock of mackerel gulls that are always hunting for sand eels on the flat. Low down across the horizon miles beyond was smeared the blue and yellow streak that marked the mainland of the cape.

To the right, only half a mile away, but through the darker water that indicated the ship channel, a four masted schooner was moving swiftly, the sunshine flashing sparks from her cable in windows and marking high lights and shadows on her swelling canvas. Ahead of her, against the sky line, was the lightskip that marked the turning point in the course. Behind, not quite so far away, was the other lightskip that she had just passed. More schooners were following her, strung out in a long line, and others, bound in the opposite direction, were standing inshore or heading out to sea as they beat up in the face of the brisk wind. An occasional steamer or an ocean tug with a tow flouted a dingy steamer of smoke here and there amid the graceful schooners.

Along the edge of the channel and sprinkled amid the blue were patches of light green water where the waves ran higher and broke occasionally. There were the shoals—the "Razor-back," the "Boneyard" and the rest. If it were possible and fashionable to erect tombstones for lives lost at sea these hidden sand bars would bristle with them. Not a winter month that passes but vessels are driven ashore here, and the wicked tides and winds scatter their timbers far and wide. The Sackett life saving crew have few restful hours from October to May.

On the edge of one of these shoals, just over in deep water, a little schooner lay at anchor, rocking and plunging incessantly. Her sails were down, and only one man was aboard. Half a mile away, just where the tail of the shoal made out into the channel, two dories were moving slowly in parallel courses, trailing a rope between them. The schooner was the Lizzie; the man aboard her was Barney Small, once a stage driver, but now, forced out of business by the new railroad, back again at his old trade—wrecking. Captain Ezra Titcomb was rowing one dory and Bradley Nickerson the other. They were "anchor dragging."

The two dories moved slowly down the edge of the shoal, separated by a distance of perhaps a hundred yards. The line between them, weighted with a lead sinker at each end, was dragging along the bottom.

They were dragging for an anchor lost by the coasting schooner Mary D. a month before. She had been caught by the tide, and the chain had been let go with a run. One of the hands aboard—Eldredge by name—was an Orham man, and he had had the presence of mind to take the "rangers," which infidelity he had sold to Captain Titcomb for a five dollar bill.

Bradley and the captain began rowing once more. They had gone but a little way when, slowly but surely, the dories began to draw nearer to each other. Bradley, looking over the side, saw that the "drag line" no longer hung straight down, but, tightly stretched by whatever was holding it on the bottom, led off diagonally astern.

A few minutes the pressure on the line had brought the dories side by side. Then Bradley passed his end of the rope to his partner, who began hauling in with care. By this operation the skipper's dory was soon brought directly over the spot where lay the hidden object. Bradley rowed his own boat alongside.

"Now, then," said Captain Titcomb, "let's see if she's got the right complexion."

He leaned over the side and, taking one end of the line in each hand, pulled them tight and saved vigorously back and forth, thus drawing a section of the rope again and again under the treasure trove below. Then he paid out one end of the line and hauled in the other until this section came to the surface. It was marked with a dull red stain—iron rust.

STORIES OF JUDGE GARY

Veteran Chicago Jurist's Love of Justice and Fair Play.

INSTANCES OF HIS READY WIT

How He Replied to Some Men That Tried to Get Out of Serving on Juries—Novel Manner in Which He Handled a German Case—How a Witness Once Got the Better of the Judge.

The late Judge Joseph E. Gary of Chicago, who tried the Chicago anarchists in 1886 and passed sentence upon Adolph Luetger, the sausage maker, who killed his wife, was the subject of many good stories which serve to show his absolute fearlessness in the line of duty and his innate love of justice and fair play, says the Chicago Post. There was probably no judge on the bench of Cook county who was more entirely impartial in his treatment of all men and all classes. The day laborer, he held, was entitled to the same treatment that is accorded to the wealthy landowner, and in his court he got it.

A story illustrative of this is told that will bear repeating. A poor, shabbily dressed fellow, who was evidently unfamiliar with the court and court methods, was on the witness stand and was subjected to a most merciless cross-examination. Many of the questions seemed to carry insinuation and innuendo with them, but no objection was raised, and the poor fellow had to endure it. The lawyer had him at his mercy, and he made things as uncomfortable as possible. Then this lawyer's client, a well dressed, aristocratic looking man, took the stand, and when it came to the cross examination the opposing counsel began to put him through the same paces that the first lawyer had the laboring man. (The first lawyer was on his feet in an instant.)

"I object to this line of cross examination," he said.

"On what grounds?" asked Judge Gary.

"The questions are insulting and irrelevant. My client is entitled to some consideration."

"Precisely the same consideration that was given to the witness who just left the stand," returned the judge. "This court has but one set of rules, and they apply to all people alike."

On another occasion a neighbor of Judge Gary's had some trouble with one of his tenants—a poor man—and he told the judge about it. There was a dispute about the payment of rent, and some question of repairs entered into it that made it far from a one sided question. But of course the landlord only saw the one side, and after dilating on that he asked:

"Am I not entitled to protection in my rights?"

"Certainly," replied the judge unhesitatingly, "certainly you are, but you have overlooked one point."

"What is that?"

"So is he."

Judge Gary always had an especial dislike for men who try to shirk jury service on flimsy excuses, and a number of good stories are told of experiences that gentlemen have had with the veteran jurist. A little German once tried to get out of jury service on the plea that he could not speak good English.

"You'll not have to speak any at all," said the judge.

"Well, shudge, I don't think I make a good shuror anyhow," persisted the juror.

"Why not?"

"Well," with a motion toward the attorneys in the case, "I don't understand nodings what dose fellows say."

"Neither does any one else. Sit down!" thundered the judge.

Another juror put in a sick excuse. "Have you anything from your doctor to that effect?" asked the judge.

"Yes, sir," was the reply. And the doctor's certificate was handed up to him.

"That's a good doctor," said the judge.

"One of the best in the city," replied the juror.

"A very good doctor," went on the judge, not noticing what the juror had said. "He'll have you cured by next term of court beyond question. Report to me then without further summons."

He insisted on testimony serving for jury duty when they had been accepted by both sides unless they had exceptionally good excuses to offer for being excused. On one occasion a man who was acceptable to each side being hard to be released. The judge asked him why he wished to be excused.

"I don't like to tell you, judge," he pleaded, "but I cannot serve."

"You will have to serve," said Judge Gary, "or else give me a valid excuse."

"Well, judge, I'll tell if I have to, but I hate to do it. The fact is, I've got the itch." The judge swung around in his chair and said to the clerk:

"Scratch this man off."

A witness once got the better of him, however, and the judge enjoyed telling of it as much as any one. He was a particularly exasperating witness, and the lawyers seemed unable to get any direct answer out of him, so the judge took a hand in the examination. It was a highway robbery case, and the witness had been the victim.

"You say you were knocked down?" said the judge.

"No, sir; I was held up," promptly responded the witness.

The judge let the lawyers continue the examination.

Train the Voice.

Remember that a good voice is as essential to self-possession as good ideas are essential to fluent language.

The voice should be carefully trained and developed. A full, clear, flexible voice is one of the surest indications of good breeding.

COSTLY CARPET FOR HOUSE

Mrs. Philip Lydie's Spiral Staircase Covered With $6,800 Fabric.

Perhaps the high water mark in modern extravagance is scored by Mrs. Philip Lydie's stair carpet, which covers the spiral staircase in her home in New York. A year ago Mrs. Lydie received a white stone house as a gift from her husband, and its most noticeable feature was a winding staircase from hall to roof. It became a question how this stone staircase could be covered to harmonize with the white tints of the house.

Mrs. Lydie determined that a white carpet would be exactly the thing, and she planned for this wonderful fabric. A white velvet carpet of eighty yards was woven especially for her, and the texture is so fine that it seems to be the best Lyons velvet. There are landings on this staircase, and in order to break the monotony of the pure white Mrs. Lydie bought a cashmere silk rug in Paris for $5,000. This rug is an antique and was formed of four medallions.

The medallions were cut out of the rug and transferred to the carpet so that they fell on the landings. The rich borders of the rug were unused and were sent to Stanford White, the late architect, whose collection of oriental fabrics was famous.

And now another expense confronted the lady "who wants what she wants when she wants it." It was the laying of this intricate carpet. It is a most difficult task to lay a carpet on a winding stair, and so an expert was called in. He placed his services at $300 and for two weeks toiled over the white velvet carpet with the medallions.

It was finished a few days ago at a total cost of $6,800 and is now covered with canvas while decorators are at work on the walls. When Mrs. Lydie invites society to her home this winter the guests will see one of the most expensive stair carpets in America.

HENRY WHITE A PUZZLE.

American Ambassador Taken For an Englishman and an Italian.

The Pall Mall Gazette's Venice correspondent recently telegraphed the following:

"The American ambassador to Italy, Henry White, is a notable figure here as he floats about in a gondola with his wife and daughter. I overheard this evening a most amusing conversation apropos of Mr. White's nationality."

"He is an American," said a lady from the States. "I am sure no one but an American would be so polite to his womankind."

"Not at all," said another dame, with a cockney accent. "He is an Englishman. He looks it all over, and no man except an Englishman would ever drink three cups of tea."

"Just then a waiter approached, and Mr. White spoke to him in the purest Italian. The ladies looked at each other in blank amazement and exclaimed: 'Why, he's an Italian! Who would have believed it?'"

WARSHIPS IN A TUB.

Unique Exhibition From Navy Department For Jamestown Fair.

A miniature basin twenty feet long and ten feet wide, filled with blue sea water and floating thirty-eight warships in line of review, is being prepared by the navy department for its exhibition at the Jamestown exposition next year, says the Washington Post.

The ships will be exact reproductions of those which participated in the recent naval review at Oyster Bay recently and were reviewed by the president.

From each smokestack will pour columns of black smoke; from the masts will fly the flags which attire the navy's ships when they are on holiday parade.

Every type of United States warship will be represented from the collier to the battleship.

More Dutch Treats.

That charming literary light, Miss Carolyn Wells, is credited with the suggestion of the Dutch treat clubs, which are giving so much enjoyment to young people who entertain large social ambitions on small incomes.

A Dutch treat club will be organized by the debutantes of Washington, with a view to protecting them against the lack of eligible men and the selfishness in those who figure as such, says a correspondent of the New York Press.

Miss Eleanor Ridgely, daughter of the comptroller, and Miss Joan Schroeder, daughter of Commander Schroeder, formerly governor of Guam, are the leading spirits in this unique organization.

A dainty room full of Dutch furniture, Deift china and picturesque scenes from the Netherlands will be fitted up for the club meetings. Each member must furnish part of the decorations, and post cards of Dutch scenes are in special demand, as they are to be used to form a dado above the plate rail.

There will be daily meetings in dull times and a weekly chafing dish feast. Each member can ask a male guest in and in the general sharing of expense must pay for her company.

No Pennies, Please.

No more will the Ohio small boy and girl trot to Sunday school and dutifully deposit their pennies in the basket, says the Boston Herald. Not if the plans of the northwest conference of the Christian church, held at Ottawa, O., are carried out.

PLAYHOUSE AND PEANUTS

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE COMPLIED WITH LAND LAW.

Soldier's Widow Testifies in Fraud Trial at Omaha—Was Not a Genuine Settler.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 8.—The government's testimony was finished Monday in the land fraud trial of A. R. Modisett, H. C. Dale and William C. Snoot. The defense has not yet announced whether any witnesses will be introduced on that side or not.

Mrs. Sarah M. Allen, of Defiance, Ia., a soldier's widow, told of filing on land at the request of A. R. Modisett, who paid her expenses. She said she afterwards visited the claim and found on it a little building which looked to her like a playhouse.

Modisett, she said, gave her a handful of peanuts and told her to go into the house and eat her lunch and thus comply with the law.

"Did you intend to live on the land?" asked the government's attorney.

"Well, I should say not," was the reply. "I wouldn't give 35 cents for the whole shooting match. I wouldn't spend four cents for improvements on such stuff as that."

"Why did you file on it?" asked the attorney.

"Well, they came to me with the Kinkaid law and a lie in their mouths and I needed the money."

Mrs. Emma T. Copeland of Lincoln, Neb., and Mrs. Mary A. Taylor of Lyons, Neb., soldiers' widows, also testified to filing through the solicitation of the defendants. Leases were made in each case, but there were no agreements to sell.

Miss Amy I. Stewart of Rushville, district clerk of Sheridan county, testified in regard to the filings made in her office to which she affixed her jurat. She received only the regular fees in all cases.

SOLDIERS GO AFTER STRIKERS.

Two Mexican Regiments Sent to Quell Disorder at Orizaba.

City of Mexico, Jan. 8.—A special train carrying two regiments of soldiers has left this city for Orizaba, in the state of Vera Cruz.

Strikers in the textile factory there have burned the company's store to the ground, and it is claimed are threatening to destroy the mill. The property is owned by A. Gargan, a citizen of France.

It was thought that the textile strike had been amicably settled through the intervention of President Diaz and Vice-President Corral, but it appears that a number of the men are dissatisfied with the terms.

The town is about 40 miles south-east of the City of Mexico and is one of the important towns of the state of Vera Cruz.

RETIRED BALL PLAYERS.

They Are Found in All Lines of Business Life.

But when the old ball player has done with the game that does not mean that he has done with the world. When I have fielded my last ball I will practice dentistry, says Capt. (Dr.) Casey, in the Independent.

The old players who have long retired are in all forms of business. Some are lawyers, like Johnny Ward and Dave Fultz; some physicians, like Cunningham; Amos Rusie is working in a lumber yard in Vincennes, Ind.; Mike Sullivan was on the governor's staff in Boston till he died; Charley Gaetzell, the Boston's old catcher, is a traveling salesman; Jim O'Rourke, formerly of the New Yorks, is playing ball to-day. He owns his own club and grounds and has a son playing on the same team with him—Connecticut State League. Roger O'Conner, the New York's old catcher, is a large property owner in Cincinnati. "Buck" Ewing is in business in Cincinnati. People who remember Arlie Latham will be glad to learn his fate. Arlie was one of the greatest kickers ever seen, the leader of riots and plague of umpires. So they've made him an umpire, and crowds now daily heap contempt upon him.

College Men in Gold Fields.

College men fairly swarm in the gold camps, and many of them flocked in as soldiers of fortune.

"Soom too!" threw a football into the middle of the main street of Goldfield one day, said a prospector. "Then he gave a college yell, and 20 men piled out of the stores and hotels and saloons so fast you couldn't count 'em. They lined up without anybody's giving the word, and played a game right on the jump. They clean wore that football out in no time."

While the college-bred man may find only disappointment and hardship in such a stormy tide of life as this, he quits it, at any rate, with a new respect for mankind, a bed-rock democracy of viewpoint and a stock of elemental courage and self-reliance. For there is this to be said of the men of the desert and mountains, that they know how to take defeat with a smile for the future and a firmer set of the jaw for the present. While there are prodigal and foolish deeds among the few who find bewildering wealth in the earth, a finer wealth of manhood is developed in the hearts of the many who fail to find that which they seek.—Outing Magazine.

By Mark Twain.

Mark Twain was once asked by a charming girl to write something in her autograph album. The humorist looked through the book and found the usual sentimental stuff such as "Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever." Then he took a pen, wrote "Never tell a lie" and signed his name. This he carefully dried with the blotter, after which he added: "P. S.—Except to keep in practice."

RED-HAIRED BOYS IN DEMAND

All Other Kinds of Office Lads in Chicago Baseball Crazy.

Since the world championship ball games began there has been a dearth of office boys in Chicago, says a dispatch from that city. The papers are filled by pleas of millionaires for office boys, but no office boys are to be had. The Doles and Sheppard company recently advertised for "red haired" office boys.

"We want red haired boys," said Manager Cady, "because of the whole staff we had before the ball games began only two remained faithful. Both were red haired. All the others have caught cold, have appendicitis, toothache or dead grandmothers, and one wrote he was 'tired with delirium tremens.'"

Groom—Why, sweetheart, what upset her?

Bride—Nothing at all—except that I told her you said she was a fierce cook.—Judge.
